The main character is missing

Hello, I am Woo Ho.

A few weeks ago, just as I started feeling that the fire was getting short and that perhaps I was needing a break, my body broke down, and I ended up with this situation. I experienced the miracle of collapsing and waking up on the deadline day.

I had resolved myself that I would never have a hiatus while doing serial publication, but my feelings of guilt toward the readers are greater than the disappointment of the broken resolution from being careless with my health.

It feels like yesterday that I was overwhelmed reading happy comments each week. So whether it's so that I don't steal a few minutes of your enjoyment, I'll try my best so that this will not happen again. I apologize.

I'll take this hiatus to heart as a lesson to myself, and I'll keep running until the end of the story without a second one.

I will also try to tell you the news of the upcoming volume. Take care of your health in this sweltering weather! I'll see you next week. Thank you.
